Unto the good Peoples of the Barony of Sacred Stone, tis, Lord Otto von Schwyz sends greetings,

Like all things this is my last issue of The Phoenix as the Baronial Chronicler. I have been your editor in chief since War of the Wings in 2017 and I will be handing the office over to Baron Talorgen nepos Wrguist, OP starting with the July issue. Please show him all of the support and submissions that you have shown me for these last two years. I wish Talorgen well on this new endeavor and look forward to seeing how the newsletter will progress in the upcoming months.

Yours in Service,

Lord Otto von Schwyz, OGD

2019 Unevent Middlegate Report

Canton business meetings are scheduled monthly.

Stuff nights for A&S activities are scheduled weekly.

Moves around see canton facebook page for events

Armor practice are scheduled weekly pending weekly.

Fighter Practice, Lake Daniels Park, Tuesday nights: 6:30

Planned activities of the Canton

6/1 Baronial Meeting and Baronial Unevent

6/1 Demo in Spencer Library

6/22 Another Foolish Event work day

6/29 Another Foolish Event

Officer Changes

Both the office of seneschal and chatelaine will come available this summer. We are accepting letters of interest for these roles starting in June. We will vote on those who are interested during the July meeting.

State of Canton:

Armor meetings are well-attended, A&S experienced a slight decline following the closure of the original Geeksboro location. We are moving meetings around to best gauge what time and location best benefits the Canton. Our active membership may be found serving in leadership positions within baronial activities both here and within our neighboring baronies. Our armored members participate in local tournaments and practices showing both their prowess in their field and their support of the armored communities.

Current Regnum:

Seneschal, Annora Hall

Minister of A&S, Maeve Dianatto

Chatelaine, Robert Shockley of Avonsford

Earl Marshal, Open

Herald, Open

Webminister; Lady Ailis inghean Ui Riagain

Another Foolish Event

In the mood for a little silliness? Tired of the same old boring event format? Just wanna skip the event and go straight for the after-party? Come to the first annual Another Foolish Event! (We are optimistically planning ahead!)

The site is climate controlled, the parking is close and paved. Dayboard is provided with your gate fee, but please bring a potluck item for evening feast. Extra points if your dish is period & corresponds to the event theme!

There will be inclusive activities throughout the day including a foolish garb contest. Be as serious or as silly as your creativity allows, no culture/time period is off limits.

There will be interactive fighting! Games! Food, GLORIOUS food! Random competitions! More details will be posted as they are concocted by our merry staff.

For dayboard dietary concerns, please contact the head chef, Lord Otto von Schwyz (Tim White). Ottovonschwyz@gmail.com

Reservations: Lady Iul'iana Krasnia (Wendi Day, daywendid@gmail.com)

Baronage: Joust was awesome. Wilhelm won the Joust tourney. Steiner won the Kraken challenge. Thrown Weapons won the ruby challenge. Cody made the finals of the Never Won a Tourney tourney. Brewers had fund and ensured the libation of the populace. The new site has air conditioned halls. Hotels were good and nearby, with fewer bugs and flat ground.

Foolish Event coming up. Will be Royal Progress.

Congratulations to our newest Laurel, Master Alain ap Daffyd

Keep doing great things! Her Excellency is happy to be the envy of Her cousins for the raw talent and skill displayed by Her populace.

Seneschal.

Operating as normal

We need a new Seneschal. Letters of intent due by August meeting.

Runestone: Looking for photos of people in garb to take for website. Tal will bring releases.

Chronicler: Needs content and deputies. Thanks to Lord Otto for his service in the job. Tal has submitted warrant request.

Chatelaine. Now have a demo deputy. Mistress Aine.

Several demos happening right now, so folks are not in the meeting.

Will run newcomers point for Birthday, including a mythical beasts themed quest for newcomers.

Exchequer. @ ConCarolina Demo

Fedor will be stepping up as Baronial exchequer

Balance: 29571.30

2480.36 in allocated funds at this time

Panther would want the pavilion shipped to them in order to determine a repair cost. There was discussion about finding a local company to do tent repair instead of shipping it to them. Fedor will follow up with Tentmasters instead of Panther in order to get an estimate.

Herald.

Iskender is stepping down as Herald to become rapier warlord. Domnhall is taking the position

Marshal

Dyggvi volunteered to be Baronial Marshal. Moved by Kisaiya. Seconded by Alain. 15 in favor, 1 abstain.

Report from Dyggvi:

1. I have sent out a message to each canton group, requesting canton marshals to contact me as well as anyone who currently holds an active, open practice, official or otherwise to email me directly.
2. If you have any interest in any Martial Sports and would like more information on how to dive in, please reach out to me and I'll get you connected!

Thanks!

Dyggvi (Digby) inn hvassi

MoL. Niccolina unable to log in. No news to report. Need deputies!

Why not Cotton?

Written by: The Honorable Lady Amathulla Luciano

Cotton has been around since before the pharaohs of Egypt yet, most people in the SCA will tell you that clothing should be made of wool or linen to be period. The reason for this is not that there was no cotton in period, but has most to do with the politics of the time.

Most people will say that the Portuguese “introduced” cotton to Europe in 1498, when Vasco de Gama started the European trade with India and started supplying inexpensive cotton goods to the continent in 1500. However there had been Cotton in the southern parts of Europe centuries before that.

In fact, cotton textile product were used in Rome as early/late as 100BE. Arabian ships brought cloth from India to both Europe and Asia starting around 100 AD. In Spain, the Moors brought cotton production and manufacturing in 700 AD. They even made cotton paper and for two hundred years Spain dominated Europe’s use and production of cotton. Cordova, Seville and Granada all produced cotton cloth and their weaving and dying process made fabric that was said to be favorably compared to that of Baghdad and Damascus. However because of the Crusades this was considered “heathen” and was thus shunned.

Italy was the next to get into the business of cotton. Italians imported cotton when Egypt stopped exporting it in the 1300’s but they had started trying their hand at the manufacture of it the 1100’s “Fustians” which were cotton blended with linen wool and/or silk came from Venice and Genoa and full cotton fabric from fine lawn to robust velveteen and corduroys came from the Lombardy region. Indian cotton came in thru Venice as well. Cotton goods were regular traded between Venice and Ulm, Germany beginning about 1320 and southern Germany took its cues from Italy and had its own cotton industry for a generation from 1363 to 1383. One or two master weavers and merchants got together a cheap workforce and the ability to regulate their products thus guaranteeing the quality of their products and supplanted Lombardy fustian on the European market. In the Champagne region of France there was a fabric market six times a year for people trade buy and sell wool, linen, China silk and Italian cotton. That lasted until the 14th century when Flanders superseded the “Champagne Faires” as the most important commercial site.

All this was quietly undermined by moralist and medieval economist in Sweden, France, the Netherlands and England who told the populus that these cottons were not made in Europe thus took the wealth away. Also such “Eastern Luxuries” corrupted the moral fiber of society.

The true leader of the “don’t use that cotton stuff” was King Edward the III of England (1327-1377) He was considered by the French as the “wool merchant” and is responsible for the “wool base” in England. He encouraged Flemish weavers to come and make and teach their fine weaving techniques so that the wool fabric from England would be “the best in the world”. From the 14th to the 16th century, wool was king in England. Suppury laws made so only the very rich could have cotton and even that was limited.

(on a side note, the word English “Spinster” comes from this time frame. All unmarried women were expected to spend their time spinning and/or weaving as they had no household to take care of because the making of cloth was done in homes instead of shops/factories.)

Add to this was the rise of the Ottoman Empire, which disrupted the flow of raw and manufactured cotton into the region and ruined the Italian and German cotton industries.

Thus cotton never really caught on in Europe. It wasn’t that it wasn’t there, it was that it wasn’t “trendy”. To wear cotton then was somewhat (as I perceive my research) like wearing fur.

So if you want to wear cotton in the SCA go ahead. The Arabs, Africans, Indians Asian and Americans all dyed it wonderful. If it is Red is from the Americas, If blue Indigo of Africa or Asia. If the pattern is block printed it is probably African or Arabic, if it is painted or batik, then it came from Asia though none of that is exclusive. Cotton blended with other stuff is a “Fustian” and can be Indian, German or Italian.

As long as you aren’t one of King Edward III and his family’s subjects, cotton is perfectly period. Why not Cotton!
